

Judge Adel Praises Work of Grand Jurors And Public Officials

Letter To Present Method of Dealing With Crime Before Discharging Grand Jurors—Resolution Filed With The Report Of The Grand Jury.

Fifteen open and nineteen sealed indictments were handed up Thursday afternoon by the grand jury in attendance at the March term of supreme court. After the duties of the grand jurors had been concluded Judge Adel in addressing the jurors and thanking them for their services, complimented them on the expeditious manner in which they had discharged their duties and also complimented District Attorney E. B. Murray and his assistant, E. L. Van Haver, for the manner in which they had presented the criminal work to the grand jurors. In discharging the grand jury Judge Adel said that he and the citizens of the county appreciated the work done by the grand jury, he spoke of the intelligent jurors who had served at the term and said that the intelligence of Ulster county jurors, as he had seen them, was much greater than was the average in the district from which he came to hold the March term.

In his talk to the grand jurors he referred to the present method of dealing with crime. He said he often pondered over the question of whether the manner of conducting criminal courts was correct. He complimented Ulster county on its freedom from crime and said "your county is practically free from crime compared with the Metropolitan districts". To prevent crime rather than to deal with crime after the offense had been committed he said was his idea of meeting the modern condition which exists today. "Spend more dollars in the prevention of crime and there will be fewer criminals to prosecute" was his way of expressing the idea. To take care of the youth of today and by proper guidance he said much crime could be prevented.

It only a small part of the huge sum spent to prosecute crime today was used to prevent crime he said the country would be in a much better state.

Stresses Crime Prevention.

In contrast with so many present day ideas Judge Adel expressed his belief in prevention of crime rather than in correction after the crime has been committed. "It is wrong to baby mature men after a crime has been committed and they have been placed in a penal institution. Baby them before, and prevent that crime." Continuing along the idea of punishment after a crime has been committed Judge Adel said, "let them know that they have been away for punishment, not for pleasure." His idea was somewhat different from the idea so often expressed, that of treating criminals in penal institutions as though they were desired guests of the state. As he expressed the thought it was more desirable to punish criminals after a crime than to give them modern conveniences and better surroundings than they usually have at home. "This work he said should be done in early life before a crime had been committed. He spoke favorably of the work done by I. M. C. A. organizations, Boy Scout workers and similar organizations which are designed to lead the youth of today in the right path. Religion he said was a cure for crime if the youth of the country could be held in religion but apparently modern times have drawn the youth away from religion and that course has failed. Only by meeting modern conditions could crime be curbed. In years past the automobile, a vehicle of crime in many instances, was unknown. Today it is here for the criminal to use to make a quick getaway.

"That we need today is a change. What we need is common sense applied to modern conditions. We need new remedies," said Judge Adel. One way to stop crime was to educate and show the youth of today the right path and this could be done to a large extent he said if a portion of the money spent to prosecute crime was spent to prevent crime in youth and give proper guidance.

Compliments Grand Jurors

In closing Judge Adel complimented the grand jurors on the vast amount of work done in so short a time. He extended his thanks to the grand jurors for their excellent service. If every citizen of the county could at some time sit with a grand jury and observe the working of that body he said he felt that it would be better for all.

He praised the work of every public official with whom he has come in contact during his term here. Not only the grand jurors but the trial jurors at the term he said showed real ability in disposing of cases. The intelligence of the trial jurors was far above that of the average juror in the metropolitan area where he usually presides he said. He praised Sheriff Saxe as a conscientious, capable and efficient sheriff. The district attorney and his assistant he said he had observed working with the grand jury and he expressed his appreciation of their ability. County Clerk Simpson he said was very efficient and always on the job. In fact he said the people of Ulster county had proven to be very capable and he expressed pleasure in having presided at the term and having the opportunity to meet all Ulster county people. There had been a large number of trial work done, but as much as he was accustomed to transact when at home but he said customs were different here. The members of the bar he said had

Turkish Government Will Now Arrest And Detain Samuel Insull

Pending Formal Arrest the Steamer Maiotis Was Detained in Istanbul Harbor By Turkish Authorities—Must Ratify Treaty Before Insull Can Be Extradited Under Its Provisions.

Washington, March 20 (AP)—The Turkish government informed the State Department today that it would arrest and detain Samuel Insull for extradition proceedings.

Robert P. Skinner, American ambassador to Turkey, messaged the department that the Turkish government had definitely promised formally to arrest Insull upon receipt of a certified copy of the warrant of arrest and a complete text of the "judicial record".

The department immediately cabled a copy of the warrant to Ankara, capital of Turkey, and arranged for a copy of the indictment to be delivered as quickly as possible. Later Ambassador Skinner reported that the Turkish government proposed to refer the papers to the proper Turkish court.

Pending Insull's formal arrest the little cargo steamer Maiotis was detained in Istanbul harbor by the Turkish authorities.

The United States and Turkey signed an extradition treaty in 1923, but it was not ratified by the United States Senate until last February 21. The Turkish assembly has not ratified yet, so it is understood here it must do so before Insull can be extradited under its provisions.

Albany, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—The sensational Thayer incident brought a warning from Governor Lehman to the New York legislature today that "the people of the state are in no frame of mind this year to have utility legislation again killed in committee rooms."

The governor expressed his warning shortly after a report was published that the impeachment of State Senator Warren T. Thayer, former chairman of the senate public service committee, would be sought.

The governor challenged each member of the legislature to show where he stands on the utility question by voting on the Lehman utility bills.

The governor continued to show great interest in the letters purporting to have been written by Senator Thayer to utility officials which were introduced before the federal trade commission yesterday. He declined to comment on a statement by Senator John J. McNab, New York Democrat, who was quoted in the Albany Evening News as saying he would move for Thayer's impeachment Monday night. Senator Thayer said he would welcome any investigation.

"Are you more confident that your utility bills will pass?" the Governor asked.

Mr. Lehman smiled.

"I have been confident—very confident that they will pass. This development directs the attention of the people of the state to the situation, to the whole question of public utilities legislation."

"There can be no question," the Governor continued, "that all my bills must be brought out on the floor of the legislature and voted on so that the widest publicity and discussion will be given each one."

"I cannot conceive that either house would refuse to report the bills out and vote on them on the floor in view of the importance of the legislation as well as the developments of the last few days."

The Governor said that such a procedure would "make the views of each individual legislator known."

"They must vote on them," he said. "The people of the state are in no frame of mind this year to allow the smothering of bills in committee rooms."

Governor Lehman who appealed to the voters last Monday night to support his utility legislation, had said he was ready to make a second broadcast speech if necessary in behalf of his bills.

"Do you think you will have to make a second speech now?" someone asked the governor.

"Well, if I do I still have plenty of good material for it," he said, smiling.

"Give us some of it, governor," he was asked.

"No, it can keep," the governor replied.

Body In Pine Tree Gives Police Mystery Death Case, Man Unknown

Thursday Afternoon 3 Boys Playing Have Attention Drawn By Creaking Groans To Body Lying In Crotch of Tree—Autopsy Shows Broken Neck.

Mystery surrounds the death of an unknown man whose body was found Thursday afternoon lying in the crotch of a dense pine tree just over the ridge from the Abel Black farm about a mile and a half from the city limits, off the Rosendale road.

The body was discovered by three boys, Louis Fuller of 57 Boulevard and Thomas and Robert Fenton of 60 Elizabeth street. The boys were tramping through the woods when they noticed unusual activity on the part of some crows. Investigating they saw the body of a man 25 feet up from the ground in a pine tree.

The boys returned home at once and the police department was notified and Sergeant Simpson, with Officers Flowers and Reardon responded. Coroner W. N. Conner, who had also been notified, went to the scene. When it was found that the body had occurred outside the city the coroner sent word to the sheriff's office and state troopers and Deputy Sheriff Markle and Vredenburg and Trooper Holly took part in the investigation.

They found that the body was caught in the crotch of the tree, lying about part of the neck was a piece of half inch Manila rope, containing a knot, the whole piece being about ten inches long. After cutting away some of the thick branches of the tree, the body was lowered to the ground and brought to the Conner funeral home on Fair street.

An autopsy was performed by Drs. Silk and Meyers and disclosed the fact that there was a slight fracture at the base of the skull on the left side. In view of this disclosure and all of the circumstances surrounding the death Coroner Conner was reserved his decision as to the cause of death.

The body is thought to be that of a man about 45 or 50 years of age. It was warmly clothed, with a green leather sheepskin lined coat and black striped trousers over a pair of gray knickers. Under the black striped coat was a brown coat sweater. On each foot were two different colored socks, with black ties and black arctics. A gray cap, which had evidently been picked by birds, bore the name "Sportsmen Quality Cap." Underwear was balbriggan "Merode."

The dead man had stood about five feet three inches high and weighed between 85 and 90 pounds. He had, according to Coroner Conner, been dead from four to six weeks when found. Due to the work of birds the head has been entirely denuded of flesh.

The only objects found in the pockets were a tortoise shell pocket knife and a Bristol watch, a metal box attached to the latter by a short leather strap bearing a picture of the capitol and the words "Washington, D. C."

The remains will be taken to the county farm at New Paltz this afternoon and interred in the cemetery at that place.

A further investigation was made at the scene of the tragedy today, with a view to finding, if possible, the remainder of the rope used, it having been too dark Thursday evening to make a thorough search of the ground in the vicinity of the tree where the body was found.

Trooper Soules and Deputy Sheriff Markle made a further investigation at the scene of the supposed hanging this morning and in the very top of the tree in which the body was found they discovered a piece of rope hanging to a limb. The rope found was about three feet long and matched the small piece found near the neck of the dead man. It hung about 10 feet above where the body lay when found.

The rope had cut quite a deep groove in the bark of the limb to which it was attached. The supposition is that the stranger had been a visitor at a shack sometimes occupied by tramps, located not far away. He evidently decided to end his precarious existence, climbed to the top of the pine tree and after making fast the rope, jumped. The body probably hung there for some time until the rope frayed and broke near the knot, letting the body drop and causing the fracture of the skull that was disclosed by the autopsy.

Albany, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—The commissioner of correction in the future may keep secret the records of his department and of state institutions if he desires to do so. Governor Lehman signed a bill, sponsored by Assemblyman Arthur L. Swartz, Erie county Republican, giving the correction department head this discretionary power. The records would be available to judges and courts, but not to the general public.

Public Works Board Purchases Four Ford Trucks For $3,265

Three Will Be Used To Collect City Ashes, Commencing About May 1, Replacing Present Horse-Drawn Rigs—Mildard & Son Lowest Bidders on Trucks—Board Met and Inspected Trucks Today.

After inspecting three trucks, a Dodge, Chevrolet and Ford at the city hall this morning the board of public works meeting in special session accepted the bid of Mildard & Son to supply the board with four Ford trucks at a cost of $3,265.18. The city turns in two old White trucks on the deal for which it was allowed $200, making the total cost of the four trucks $3,265.18. Mildard & Son submitted the lowest bid for the trucks.

The board also decided to purchase three Collecto bodies to be installed on the Ford chassis of three of the trucks which will be sent to Albany to be equipped with these bodies. These three trucks will be used to collect the city ashes, replacing the present horse-drawn rigs, and will be ready to be placed in operation by May 1.

The fourth truck will be equipped with a C J 1 body and a F I C S hoist. All four trucks are to be painted battleship gray.

At the last meeting of the board bids were received and opened from local auto dealers, and the awarding of the contract was adjourned until today when the three low bidders brought the proposed trucks to the city hall for inspection by the board.

The board also adopted a resolution directing Superintendent James Norton to attend the New York state training school for public superintendents to be held in Troy, April 17 to 19, under the auspices of the state mayors' conference.

POPE AIDS TODAY IN PRAYER IN SISTINE CHAPEL, ROME

Rome, March 20 (AP)—Pope Pius aided personally today in the commemoration of Jesus Christ's crucifixion by assisting at a pre-sanctified Mass in the Sistine Chapel.

The celebrant of the Mass was Cardinal Pacelli and it was performed in the presence of 15 cardinals.

Elsewhere in Rome's many Catholic churches, black-vestmented priests prostrated themselves before bare altars and prayed long and earnestly in mournful commemoration of Christ's sacrifice by death for mankind.

The basilicas and churches were stripped of ornament. Tapers and candles were removed. Drapes of deep purple and somber black covered the sacred images. No Masses were said nor sacrifices offered.

Stolen Property Recovered

Meanwhile a detective was sent to watch Mombourquette's home. He was arrested as he returned there. With the local officials and New York police he visited many second hand stores and much of the stolen property was recovered. Mombourquette was turned over to the local authorities and brought back to Ulster county by Sergeant Hopkins, Trooper Holly and Deputy Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg.

He talked freely of the Woodstock robberies and cooperated with the authorities in recovering the stolen property. He told his story to District Attorney E. B. Murray and as a result of that story on the part of the defendant his case was heard before the grand jury which was then in session. At a recent three indictments were handed up Thursday charging burglary, third degree, there were three counts of unlawful entry to a building and two indictments charging grand larceny, second degree. The burglaries are alleged to have taken place on January 15, January 20 and February 10. To all of these Mombourquette entered pleas of not guilty. The grand larceny charges are alleged to be on February 10 and March 19 at Woodstock. To one of these grand larcenies, second degree, charged he entered a plea of guilty.

The last grand larceny charge on March 19 is less than a week prior to Mombourquette's arrest.

On his plea of guilty to the larceny charge Mombourquette's statement was taken. He said he was married and lived in New York in Greenwich village. He admitted a previous conviction in Ohio and District Attorney Murray filed a record of conviction in the state of Ohio where in 1925 Mombourquette had been convicted and sentenced to prison for burglary, third degree. The crime there is said to have been along the same line as the present ones at Woodstock. Mombourquette admitted that the record of conviction made under the name of Charles Allen was correct and that he had served three years in prison at Springfield, Ohio.

Charles Allen Mombourquette, 37, ex-Canadian soldier and former Greenwich village restaurant keeper, found that justice was swift in Ulster county. Just a week ago today Mombourquette was arrested in a Greenwich village apartment by New York detectives on a charge of having entered several Woodstock homes and removed a quantity of valuable books, art objects and heirlooms. Today he stands committed to Clinton State Prison at Dannemora for a term of seven and a half years.

Mombourquette, a meek, mild mannered man who still shows his army training, stands convicted as a second offender and as such was sentenced by Judge Adel in supreme court Thursday afternoon. A man of slight stature, wearing great horn-rimmed spectacles, he presents anything but the picture of a criminal. As he stood before the judge he displayed a military bearing learned by many months of service in the Canadian forces during the World War in active service.

The downfall of Mombourquette was completed last week when he attempted to rob his own sister's place at Montclair, N. J., when he supposed the place was in charge of the maid, with a companion, Leslie Hutchins of New York, he went to Montclair in a hired car. Hutchins attempted to dispose of the maid after he had gone to the furnace room by posing as a repair man. However, the maid's screams attracted the attention of Mombourquette's sister who had come to Montclair unknown to him while his sister was away. She called the police and Hutchins was arrested as he left the place. Mombourquette escaped. However, Hutchins pressed by the detectives, told his story and also told of the Woodstock jobs which he and Mombourquette had carried out over a period of several weeks.

State Troopers and the sheriff were asked to watch for Mombourquette at Woodstock, where it was thought he might return. Later notice was sent here that Hutchins had told of certain burglaries at Woodstock and an investigation by Troopers and attaches of the sheriff's office revealed the truth of these statements.

6. Only The Absolutely Needy To Receive Home or Work Relief

Major Heiselman Received Word Thursday Afternoon From State Emergency Relief Administration To That Effect—City To Be Reimbursed 75 per cent of Amounts Expended.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman received a communication from Alfred H. Schoellkopf, chairman of the Temporary Emergency Relief Administration stating that only those who are absolutely in need of relief will remain on either home or work relief rolls after the first of April. The policy of reimbursing 75 per cent of the amount expended in home and work relief in Kingston is contingent upon the continued federal participation as agreed to between the state administration and the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Under the policy that has been approved reimbursements to municipalities in New York state will amount to 75 per cent of the total approved relief expenditures including home relief, work relief and approved materials for work relief projects.

All workers now employed on local CWA projects will be investigated by the board of public welfare before they can continue working under the Works Division of the emergency work relief which replaces the CWA the first of April.

The two have been friends since they were children in 1870. Bigelow visited the former emperor at Doorn.

He reported that the ex-kaiser's health is good, and that he "chopped wood as usual." He sent his regards to President Roosevelt. Bigelow said.

"Hitler has everything under control. I am confident the former kaiser appreciates the work which Hitler is doing in creating a new Germany."

Bigelow is an author and former newspaper correspondent. He lives at Malden-on-Hudson, N. Y. His father was ambassador to France under President Lincoln.

2 Killed in Texas $250,000 Hotel Fire

Longview, Tex., March 20 (AP)—At least two persons were killed and 21 injured, 11 of them seriously, here early today when fire razed the $250,000 Longview Hotel.

D. F. Stafford, Dallas, was killed when he jumped from a third floor window and struck the pavement head first. Search of the ruins resulted in the discovery of a charred body.

The fire broke out at midnight after most of the guests had retired and in a short time swept the three-story structure. Making desperate efforts to escape the flames, many persons slipped from windows.

It was feared that some of the guests might have been trapped in their rooms. Firemen said they brought two men might have lost their lives in a third floor room.

Judge Adel inquired whether he waived the usual 48 hours before sentence and Mombourquette said he did. Asked if he had anything to say the defendant said that there was but one thing he could say and that was the fact that he had cooperated with the authorities and made ample restitution. He said he thought if given a chance he could make practically full restitution. Judge Adel said that Mombourquette apparently had cooperated with the authorities to the full extent but this alone was not enough. He made some thing easier to know that Mombourquette felt repentant of his crimes but the court said that Mombourquette was a man of mature years, a man who had been in trouble before and who apparently had not profited much by that former lesson. However, the court took into consideration the aid Mombourquette had given and imposed a sentence of 7 1/2 years.

Pope Pius Plans His First Vacation In Twelve Years

Castel Gandolfo, Italy (AP)—The pope's summer villa here is being put in readiness to receive a pontiff for the first time in 12 years.

Pope Pius is expected to make his first vacation retreat, re-establishing a custom his predecessors followed until they became "voluntary prisoners" in the Vatican in May, 1871.

It is understood that the pope will move to the villa with his court in May and stay through June, July and perhaps August. This will be his first vacation since he became head of the church, 12 years ago.

Villa Refurnished.
Although he will come primarily to rest and escape the sultry summer weather of Vatican City, he is expected to hold court here on a few occasions and probably will grant regular audiences. If he arrives in May he will be here for his seventy-seventh birthday, which falls on the last of the month. The villa has been completely rehabilitated in recent years and will provide a comfortable abode for the pope and his retinue. It is at an altitude of 1,400 feet and dominates a beautiful lake region.

Although his doctors have been urging Pius for several years to leave the low-lying church state during the hot months, he never previously has found time to do so. Last year he made two trips to the villa, but in both cases a few days' illness kept him away.

In Touch By Wireless.
He is expected to make one final trip to the villa before his departure for Rome in April. It probably will be his last trip to the villa, which he has used for his summer residence since 1929.

A radio-telephone will be installed at the villa to keep the pope in contact with the Vatican. There is a similar plant at Vatican City, which is used by the pope.

The villa at Castel Gandolfo was built by Pope Urban VIII in 1629. Pius IX occupied it in 1869, just preceding the state of siege. It was then that the pope refused to leave the Vatican. The present pope occupied it in 1929, when the Lateran treaty was signed.

STATE INCOME TAX

—BY—
MARK GRAVES, Commissioner.

All ordinary and necessary expenses of business, interest on indebtedness, or taxes other than income taxes, had debts, and most contributions to religious and charitable organizations are deductible under the New York State Income Tax Law. Our Bureau is annually deluged with requests for information in this category. In consequence, it seems fitting that a full article be devoted to an explanation of just what type of deductions the taxpayer may make.

By ordinary and necessary expenses we mean those connected with the carrying on of the taxpayer's business. Rent, salaries, wages, commissions and similar expenses fall in this classification and may be deducted in arriving at net income. Many taxpayers whose income is based on salaries and commissions have some necessary expenses connected with the earning of this income. These also are deductible. Such deductions will be required to be proven by proper records of all the items claimed.

Interest charges of practically every nature may be deducted by the taxpayer. Carrying charges on mortgages, even though the same may be on a personal residence, fall within the deductible items.

Turning to the deductions allowable for payment of other taxes, we find that levies on real property, other than assessments for improvements, automobile license fees and State gasoline taxes, may be eliminated from net income. Federal taxes on telephone and telegraphic messages, electric current safety deposit boxes, club dues and admissions, checks and the various stamp taxes on securities and deeds are likewise deductible.

Certain other Federal taxes, however, may not be deducted in the computation of net income, since they are not levied against the purchaser or consumer, but fall upon the manufacturer or distributor. In this group are the taxes on automobiles, lubricating oil, gasoline, tires and other automobile accessories, cigarettes, chewing gum, candy, fire arms, watches, soft drinks, jewelry, malt syrup, grape concentrates, radios, photographic records, etc. Neither Federal nor State income tax payments are deductible. It might be well to point out also that non-residents are allowed deductions for taxes only when they are definitely connected with their New York income or with property located in New York State.

Bad debts must be properly substantiated if the deduction is to be allowed. The Department demands that proof be available that the debt is actually worthless and charged off on the taxpayer's books during the course of the taxable year. Where a worthless debt is carried over on the books for a period of several years it is not deductible. Just as soon as it becomes obvious the debt is not collectible, the deduction should be claimed.

Losses sustained through ownership of worthless securities or those from fires, shipwrecks, storms or other casualties may be deducted also. In cases involving loss through the sale of a personal residence, no deduction is allowed.

There are certain restrictions on the deductions allowable for contributions. They must not exceed 15 per cent of the net income, and it is also provided that they must be made to the United States, or any State or municipality exclusively for public purposes, or any corporation, or trust, or community chest, or fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes, or to posts or organizations of war veterans. Again, in the case of non-resident taxpayers such contributions may be subtracted from net income when made to New York State organizations.

DOCTOR-DEIFYING BRITON SEEKS AMAZON BATTLE

London (AP)—W. J. A. Grant, the 32-year-old traveller and explorer who burst into the news in January with his "farewell to life" champagne party in Exeter, is off on new adventures.

Saying "I intend to have some excitement before I die," he left for South America "because I hear there has been some trouble up the Amazon."

"I hope it lasts until I arrive," he said. "I have not had a really good fight for years."

Grant, for whom Cape Grant in Franz Josef Land reportedly is named, staged his "swan dance" as "my final kick-up" after doctors had told him he was dying from a complication of ailments.

After an all-night champagne supper and only two hours of sleep, he said he "felt fine" and he has continued to "feel fine" as the weeks have passed.

TAFT NEW YORK

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—One of the most striking features of the debate in the House on passage of the bonus bill was the constant recurrence of predictions that the measure never would become law.

"We are throwing sand in the eyes of the veterans," said Britton of Illinois.

"We are taking the veterans for a political joy ride," declared Fish of New York.

"It's an attempt to buy veterans' votes with a scrap of paper," shouted Brown of Kentucky.

Yet the line of bonhomie drawn up behind Fatman of Texas, author of the bill, held firm and the bill was sent hurrying across Capitol Hill squarely into the lap of the Senate.

There's a deeper significance in this move of the House than appears on the surface. It goes further than revolt against the administration or even desire on the part of the House to see the veterans cash in on their adjusted compensation certificates.

Republicans Started It

THE drive for liberalization of veterans' compensation in this session of Congress originated with the Republicans in the Senate. It was the amendments offered by Steiwer of Oregon, a Republican, to the independent officers appropriation bill which made that measure unacceptable to the administration.

Solid Republican support for these amendments, backed by insurgent Democrats, made it possible to hand the administration a decisive defeat on its economy program.

Previously the House, held in check by its leadership, had passed the same measure without tampering with the provisions affecting veterans. Politically speaking, the House deeply resented the action of the Senate which had the effect of putting representatives from the spot.

Home Terms Tables

THE Fatman bonus bill gave representatives a golden opportunity to hand the Senate much the same sort of treatment which that body has been giving them on the veterans' issue.

Payment of the bonus in the way provided in the Fatman bill is objectionable to the conservative Republican element in the Senate on the grounds that it is inflationary and for any number of other reasons.

What has happened is this: The House has said to the Senate: "You were the first to kick over the traces on this question. You've put us on the political spot. Very well, we'll give you something that really packs a political wallop. What are you going to do about it?"

CONTRACT IS GAMBLING BY BRITISH POLICE RULE

Harrogate, England (AP)—A ruling by police here that bridge is a game of chance has thrown card-players into a turmoil.

Its immediate effect was the cancellation of a bridge congress, but it also has cast a shadow over proposed tournaments throughout the country.

The bridge congress was to have been held in a hotel which is licensed to sell liquor, and gambling is not allowed on licensed premises. The police ruled that, even though the only stakes in the congress were trophies, the latter were the equivalent of money. Lawyers have endorsed the decision.

Norway's Nickel Mine

Norway's most important nickel mine has been in constant operation since 1920, producing about 35 per cent of all ore mined in that country.

TRIO OF PRINCES FINED FOR AFRICAN AUTO HUNT

Nairobi, British East Africa (AP)—Prince Francis of Leichtenstein, Prince Furstenberg of Austria and Prince Youseff Kemal were fined $500 each in a local court because they shot 25 bucks after running the animals down in automobiles.

Several other offenders were fined $250 each. The complaining game warden asked for heavy penalties, telling the court that almost every newspaper in the world had given publicity to the fact that hunting from automobiles had been forbidden.

Distasteful in Courtesy

"Even courtesy may be distrusted," said Bi Ho, the sage of Chinatown. "He who is invariably polite cannot always be absolutely candid."

German People Must Salute Flag

Stuttgart, Germany (AP)—School children and teachers must stand at attention and give the Nazi salute when flags are hoisted over school buildings, says the Weierstrass ministry of education in a decree which emphasizes "the importance of the national emblem."

Africa to Fix Minimum Wage

Cape Town (AP)—The South African government is backing a bill designed to provide more jobs for Europeans through the fixing of minimum wage rates. It proposes at least $2 a day for laborers.

Dr. Cantine Gives Address on Arabia

Missionary in That Country for 20 Years Gives Interesting Talk at Kiwanis Club Luncheon.

"Foreign Governments in Arabia" was the topic considered before members of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday noon, the speaker being the Rev. Dr. James Cantine of Stone Ridge, who has spent 40 years in that country as a missionary. The discussion was from the standpoint of a missionary, rather than a political analysis, and was interesting because of the many personal observations incorporated in the address.

An invitation from the Rotary Club to meet with it on next Wednesday, when "Aviation Day" would be observed, was received from President Alfred Schmidt. Notice was also given of special events to be held next Thursday during the "Father-Daughter" meeting. Guests at the meeting were the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church, and Rotarian E. R. Pike of Philadelphia. The musical program was in charge of Paul Zucca, assisted at the piano by Danny Bittner.

Dr. Cantine, who was introduced by Program Chairman Roger Loughran, began his remarks by saying that Arabia until recently was an almost forgotten part of the world, where primitive people live, bound only by tribal laws, and we know it. The discovery of oil, he continued, has brought many Americans, English and French to Arabia, to develop these newly discovered oil fields.

Speaking of foreign governments, the speaker said that the missionary was content to remain aloof from them, but that at times the consuls of the various countries were sought for advice. He explained that in his opinion the English consuls were the most cordial. Prior to the World War, he stated, the German government was busy in Arabia bringing new methods, which were looked upon with disfavor by the French and English. He explained that the American consuls were few and many times were not Americans, but foreigners who were hired cheaply to represent the United States. Recently, he said, this has been changed, and consulates are only maintained by the United States where Americans can be secured to man them.

Dr. Cantine spoke of his experiences with various consuls, some pleasant experiences and others not so pleasant.

It was the speaker's contention that the American consuls should be furnished with more money that they might live in better style and keep up appearances. He said that in many cases the consul was required to raise his own flag, and was laughed at by the consuls of other countries. In closing, he stated that his experiences had almost always been cordial with all consuls.

President Harry Halverson thanked the speaker for his remarks, after which the meeting adjourned.

Greek Fire

Greek fire is a composition supposed to have been made of pounded resin or bitumen, sulphur, asphalt and nitre. Naphtha is the principal ingredient. It was this mixture that was employed by the Greeks from about 673 A. D. onward to defend themselves against the Saracens. It was poured out burning from tubes to a distance, or shot from ballistae, burning on tow tied to arrows.

Charles Scully, 20, entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of carrying a pistol on March 19, last. He did not ask for bail.

Ernest Terrell and Robert Burton, two negroes, were arraigned on a charge of violation of the A. B. C. law on December 20, 1933, in that they were manufacturing liquor. They pleaded not guilty and were advised to get counsel or the court would assign a lawyer.

In all of the cases where pleas of not guilty were entered, an order was made transferring them to county court for trial. All sealed indictments were likewise transferred to county court.

No Bills of Indictment. The grand jury reported no bills of indictment in the following cases and where bail has been deposited and where bail was exonerated the bill and where the accused person was in custody a order of discharge was entered.

John Doe, forgery, second degree.

Arthur Elsworth, grand larceny, second degree.

Herbert Barranger, manslaughter, second degree.

Solomon Bernard, manslaughter, second degree.

Not Guilty, Says "The Clubber"

John Henry "The Clubber" Ten Eyck next came before the court. Ten Eyck was charged with burglary, third degree and unlawful entry alleged to have been committed on January 20, 1934, at Clintondale. He pleaded not guilty. There were also two robbery, first degree, charges read as well as a grand larceny, second degree, charge. To all he entered a plea of not guilty. All of the acts are alleged to have taken place on January 30, 1934, when it is charged "The Clubber" went to the Raddigan house at Clintondale and there entered the house and demanded money from Mrs. Campbell, an invalid, in the house. Mr. and Mrs. Raddigan and a girl, Helen Cutler, were threatened and it is alleged the defendant compelled Mr. Raddigan at the point of a gun to go out and start his Essex car with which the defendant made his escape. He was arrested at Poughkeepsie on his return from Albany. He had been arrested before by Poughkeepsie police who knew him. After compelling Mr. Raddigan to start the car it is alleged Ten Eyck returned to the house and bound the folks and left. Mrs. Campbell is a bed-ridden invalid.

Judge Adel asked defendant how he pleaded and the reply was not guilty.

"No bail in your case," said Judge Adel. "I don't fix any bail in robbery cases."

Kish Pleads Not Guilty

Alex Kish was arraigned on a charge of murder, second degree for the killing of George Marks on February 28 at the Old Federation House on Hasbrouck avenue, where Marks was a caretaker. William H. Gorman appeared for defendant and entered a plea of not guilty.

Kish it is alleged came to Kingston and entered the house in search of his wife who lived in an apartment in the house where Marks was caretaker. Not finding her there it is alleged he entered the Marks apartment, perhaps in search of his wife there, and in the mix-up which followed Marks was killed. Mrs. Kish returning home later entered the Marks apartment to put some clothes in the room and stumbled over the body of Marks. She gave the alarm and when officers arrived they found Kish in his wife's apartment with a gas jet turned on. He was revived and charged with the murder.

Charles Scully, 20, entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of carrying a pistol on March 19, last. He did not ask for bail.

Ernest Terrell and Robert Burton, two negroes, were arraigned on a charge of violation of the A. B. C. law on December 20, 1933, in that they were manufacturing liquor. They pleaded not guilty and were advised to get counsel or the court would assign a lawyer.

Pointers on Poise

You can make a pleasing picture of yourself by taking care that arms and legs balance, the principle being the same as that applied to the placing of furniture.

VIII. Balance In Sitting

By LAURA TOWNSEND DAVIES

If you had two heavy pieces of furniture in a room, say a large bookcase and a piano, and all of the other pieces were comparatively small, such as chairs, tables, lamps, etc., would you place the bookcase and piano on the same side of the room? No, you would be more apt to place the bookcase on one side of the room and the piano on the other to have a balanced room.

The same principle applies to the person. If you were to sit, say, with the right foot in front of the left, would the picture be balanced if you placed your right arm on the arm of the chair? No, the graceful pose would be with the left arm on the arm of the chair, right hand and arm relaxed in your lap. Then the picture would balance.

Tomorrow—Balance In Standing.

Old Valentine Custom

One of the oldest of customs connected with Valentine's day was the placing of the names of young men and women in a box, from which they were drawn on St. Valentine's eve. Those whose names were drawn together had to exchange presents and be "each other's valentines" for the ensuing year.

MODENA FIRE DEPARTMENT MINISTREL SHOW APRIL 6

Modena, March 26. The minstrel show to be presented by the Modena Fire Department in Hasbrouck Memorial Hall Friday evening, April 6, at 8:15, promises to be a most unique entertainment.

Kullie Ward, chairman, has hinted that beside some of the best black-face comedians obtainable, there will be several famous actors taking part. Such headliners as Achoo Pitts, Grock Grah, Wally Bieery, Lewis Rock, Clarke Stable and Willy Fowl have donated their services to make the affair a huge success.

The minstrel, which was written especially for the Modena fire department by Bert Yeager, is under the personal direction of the author. Three songs, "The Boys", "I'd Like You to Like Me" and the closing chorus, were also written by Mr. Yeager and will be performed for the first time by members of the cast.

Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Jr., will act as emcee, and the end men are Frank Miller, "Gersh" Mount, "Tom" Mance, "Bob" Harris, "Verney" Wager and John Leghorn. There will be a chorus of 20 voices to assist the soloists.

EASTER SERVICES AT ALBANY AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH

Four Easter services will be held at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday. The first is the Easter dawn service at 7 o'clock, conducted by the Kingston Youth Council, when the Easter song-story, "Matthias-Ben-Ezra," will be given by a chorus of young people with the readings by members of the Youth Council. The second service will be the session of the Bible School at 10 o'clock with Superintendent W. W. Brady, Jr., in charge. The regular morning service with special Easter music, baptismal service, observance of the communion, and reception of new members will be at 11 o'clock. The minister will give a brief Easter sermon on the topic, "The First Easter Message." The last service of the day will be at 7:30 p. m., with a program of Easter music by the choir and others, and the presentation of an Easter pageant, entitled "He Is Risen," by members of the Christian Endeavor Society.

"My new Studebaker cost me $400 less!"

YES, I'm a confirmed Studebaker owner," says Mr. J. H. Pettit. "This new 1934 Dictator is my third. And you're certainly right when you say it's a finer Dictator than the best you've built in previous years."

"I'm glad to tell you that this Dictator more than comes up to all my expectations."

"It is comfortable and easy to handle. Its skyway style makes it beautiful to look at—and it's very economical on gasoline, averaging approximately 19 miles per gallon for me."

"I paid practically $400 less for this 1934 Dictator than my 1932 Studebaker cost. And I feel I've got everything anyone could want in a car."

Original 'Wooden Gun' Bandit in Jail Today

Sold. Respectable Citizen of Jasper, Ala. Arrived at Jail-Breaker at Leavenworth 24 Years Ago—His Friends Astonished.

Edmonton, Alta., March 28 (AP).—James Fahy, long a solid and respected citizen, is in jail today as the "original wooden gun bandit" who broke out of Leavenworth prison 24 years ago by smashing the gates with a speeding locomotive.

The Jekyll and Hyde story that American police told as they pressed for the extradition of Fahy aroused the friends he made during his years of respectability.

They knew him as a 46-year-old contractor and sports lover who for eight years has been a pillar in the community of Jasper, Alta.

United States postal inspectors, adding a 24-year hunt—describe him as Frank Grigware, former desperado and mail robber. In 1909 Grigware and four other men snatched a Union Pacific train near Omaha, the officers said, and robbed it of nine mail sacks.

Speedily, the police rounded up the gang and sent all five to Leavenworth for life. But the next year, the bandits escaped, taking a sixth prisoner with them.

Their method of escape was a sensation. Manufacturing wooden pistons, in much the same way that John Dillinger did nearly a quarter of a century later, they approached a switch engine in the prison yards.

Cowing the engineer and fireman with the imitation guns, they forced them out of the cab. Grigware then threw the throttle open and the big locomotive roared out, smashing the prison gates from their hinges.

Outside, the six jumped off the engine and fled. All were recaptured except Grigware.

Arbor Day, as Such, Was Suggested in Year 1872

As early as 1865 B. G. Northrup, a Connecticut educator, suggested an annual planting of trees under the direction of the state governments. But the first to take steps toward that end, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, was J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska, a member of the state board of agriculture, and later, under President Cleveland, United States secretary of agriculture.

Morton, in 1872, introduced a resolution at a meeting of the Nebraska state board of agriculture setting aside April 10 for tree planting and suggesting that the day be called "Arbor day." In 1896 the Nebraska legislature passed an act changing the date to April 22, Morton's birthday, and making it a legal holiday.

The Arbor day idea extended throughout the other states and territorial possessions, and is now an event in the calendar of every one of them. There is no uniformity of date, however. Most northern states observe it toward the end of April; the southern and western at various other seasons. Ohio's is by proclamation of the governor.

The United States government took the first step in forest conservation in 1876, and appointed Dr. Franklin B. Hough as special agent to make a survey of the forest resources of the United States. There are 42 states with organized forestry departments, supplementing the national work of the United States Forest service.

"Once in a Blue Moon" The expression "once in a blue moon" appears to have originally meant "never," but now it denotes "very rarely." Ware's "Famous English of the Victorian Era" says that its origin is absolutely lost in mystery but it is probably an Anglicism of a word or words with which neither "blue" nor "moon" has anything to do. The United States weather bureau also has been unable to account for the phrase. Doctor Brewer, compiler of the Dictionary of Phrase and Fable, states in his explanation of the phrase: "On December 10, 1824, we had a blue moon. The winter was unusually mild." Again in December, 1927, at the time of an eclipse of the moon, some observers in Belfast, Ireland, were reported to have seen a blue tint in the moon's appearance. Moons of unusual colors, such as green and blue, have been noted after violent volcanic eruptions or through smoke-laden fogs.

Park Barred Legislation

The first bill for harbor improvement was passed by congress March 2, 1828. Enemies of the bill alleged that its advocates voted for it purely for political reasons, to make themselves popular among their constituents by getting something for their districts. This so-called rush upon the federal treasury was compared to the rush made by the slaves on the southern plantations when the park barrel was opened. River and harbor improvement bills were over after South Carolina called park barrel bills. Later the term was extended to any legislation supposedly passed for purposes of political patronage. The total contribution to a campaign fund are sometimes called the park barrel.

First Woman Doctor

Elizabeth Blackwell, M. D., born in Bristol, England, in 1821, was the first woman admitted to practice medicine in the United States. She came to this country in 1848 and after much opposition was admitted to the Geneva Medical College, in New York State, from which she was graduated with highest honors in 1849. She was the first woman to obtain a medical degree in the United States. She died in London in 1910.

'DOGGIE' PAIN IN NECK TO COWBOYS

Nothing Romantic About Miserable Little Creature.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Neither the origin of the term "doggie" nor the actual social position of the doggie on a ranch, say Texas cowboys, justifies the place to which the scruffy, mother-worms can't be exalted.

There is nothing romantic about the miserable little creature, whose chance of living is very small, cowboys say, and which are thorns in the life of every cowboy, despite the lofty place to which the doggie has been elevated in the recent popularization of old cowboy songs and "Tia Pan Alley" imitations of them.

"It would have been a wonderful thing if the song writers, radio crooners and paragraphers who have succeeded in bringing about all the furore over the word 'doggie' had taken the time to get the opinion of a few old cowmen in Texas," writes John M. Hendrix of Sweetwater, Texas, secretary of the Sweetwater board of development. Sweetwater is in the heart of the Texas cattle country.

"They are really worthless little critters, traveling in the herd behind the drags, and causing no end of trouble," Hendrix said.

"The old cowman may tell you that you can carry all the motherless calves on the ranch miles and miles in front of your saddle to get them to headquarters and try to raise them on the bottle, but that they will 'doggie' on you in spite of the devil, and you had just as well knock them in the head where you find them."

What is meant by the use of "doggie" as a verb is explained in the traditional origin of the word.

Old cowmen of Clay and Montague counties, back in the '30s, explain the origin this way:

A kind hearted old ranch lady instructed her cowboys to bring in all the motherless calves as she might attempt to raise them by gentle cows or on the bottle.

"It is common knowledge," Hendrix said, "that a stunted animal, when given an unusual amount of food, develops an abnormal paunch, which is sometimes referred to as a 'pot' or 'dough belly'."

"According to these old timers, the cowboys, none too pleased with the idea of lugging a bawling, squirming calf eight or ten miles in the saddle, began to refer to her collection of orphan calves as 'dough-guts,' which by common usage eventually became 'doggie,' or 'doggie.'"

Process Is Invented for Purifying Human Blood

Gleason, Germany.—A new process for purifying human blood mechanically, which may revolutionize the present treatment of blood diseases, has been discovered by Dr. George Haas, noted German expert on internal maladies.

By long experiments on animals, Doctor Haas has perfected his process so that the first experiment made on human beings was crowned by 100 per cent success.

The process is based on the osmotic principle familiar to all physicians. Doctor Haas opened an artery and let the patient's blood pass through a system of tubes of semipermeable material serving as a membrane. The tubes were contained in a warm salt solution of the same concentration as pure blood.

The tube system functions as a sort of filter through which poisonous salts or other stuff carried in the blood stream pass freely to the salt solution, while the natural contents of the blood are kept within. After this cleansing process the purified blood is let back into the patient's veins.

Texas Man Goes Fishing and Brings Home a Duck

Texas City, Texas.—Louis Shannon went fishing and caught a duck.

Baiting his hook with a fat shrimp, Louis cast it into the water near where a small flock of ducks were feeding. One curious and hungry duck saw the choice shrimp submerged and dived for a meal.

Louis pulled the duck out, removed the hook from its throat, tied a string around the duck's neck, and led it home.

Philadelphia.—A jury in Delaware county court has decided that the inability to be able to smell onions is worth $3,500.

Miss Jean Marsh, Philadelphia ex-model, twenty-seven, was struck by an automobile driven by John M. Reuterberg, Upper Darby. Several operations were performed on her nose in an attempt to restore the former beauty. The operations failed and the young woman now needs the assist.

She testified at the trial in Media that she couldn't even smell onions and the jury's sympathy went out to her in the form of a $3,500 verdict.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Using Soldiers
Destroying Our Nation
John D. Rockefeller

By ED HOWE
WE HAVE a good many professional soldiers who live in considerable magnificence and idleness. In our expensive forts and arsenals devote much time to fancy riding not required in war; army posts are the university of the aristocratic game called polo.

Since we pay an enormous soldier tax, why not make some sensible use of soldiers? Why not distribute squads of them over the country and require them to get exercise by chasing highwaymen, bank burglars, the rascals who bomb peaceful and useful business institutions, and beat up peaceable workmen? Why not a thousand soldier camps instead of a few dozen luxurious ones like the Presidio, a show place in San Francisco? Why not use the fighting men we employ at such terrific expense in maintaining peaceable order in a thousand different communities?

There is a man named Oswald Spengler whose writing one hears a good deal about. His book called "The Decline of the West" is an attempt to prove that the United States is going to the devil, and that nothing can stop it. Mr. Spengler does not specially criticize us for throwing our cook-stoves and beds away, and going back to campfires and brush piles, except that his statistics seem to show that while nations always destroy themselves with dissension and false progress, our pace is rather more rapid than has been the rule in national destruction heretofore.

Civilization, Mr. Spengler declares, always destroys itself because people demand too much of it. After a man gets one bath room, and is fairly comfortable in his home, he demands two or three; it was lately charged against a prominent citizen of Texas he had nineteen. Now he has lost not only his nineteen bath tubs, but his house, and the fortune that supported it. His neighbors who had but one bath room took after this aristocrat, and caught him. They are all going to the creek for bathing now but they had an enjoyable fight.

Mr. Spengler believes the special speed we have displayed in going to the devil is due more to our editors than to any other cause. The American newspapers, he charges, have thrown away the brakes and pursue a wide open policy; they drive as fast in everything as their readers drive their new automobiles, and wrecks will inevitably destroy us as a little earlier than has been the rule in older civilizations.

A few conservatives are bawling for reasonable delay in traveling the road to destruction; for at least as much moderation as the Greek and Roman displayed, but ours is a fast age, and possibly we shall continue to step on it.

Considering the many bad things I have known other men to do, I conclude John D. Rockefeller is an exceptionally good man. His father was a runaway, and deserted a good wife and her little children, but John was a good boy, and took care not only of his mother and his younger brothers and sisters, but looked up his father, and helped him, too.

When John had children of his own, he had family prayers, and tried to bring them up right.

The Rockefeller foundation, the greatest philanthropy in the history of the world, is still on its feet, although possibly staggered a little by the recent depression. At ninety-three old John is still pursuing his policy of giving little, and doing much.

In moral conduct, fairness, fairness, common sense, his average is higher than that of any other man I know from reading the papers. Of course he has been rich a long time, but this is the most excusable of faults, since every one is trying to be guilty; and I predict that after he has been dead long enough for gossip to get around to the truth (which it always does) his movement will be a little higher than those of Gotha, the post, Hamblin, the general, or Platts, the philosopher.

After all, it is the Butter and Egg Man who is in position to most influence and better the world by making a high average in the practical things. Writing a bit of poetry, winning a fight, or tossing off a philosophical gem, are small matters compared with the daily Butter and Egg struggle; in this John D. Rockefeller has long been a master, and made an exceptionally high average from a boy of fourteen to an old man of ninety-three.

There is a bold, marvellous thing called Night. Opposed to it is a timid thing making explanations called Wrong.

I have never known anyone not willing to go too far in publicity. President, king, senator, matinee idol, bride, hero, farmer who has killed a wolf, poor boy who has become a prodigious business man, always consent to be photographed beyond the point of modesty when the newspapers take after them.

A man cannot always be a gentleman; there is too much of the devil in him, but he can always hope to be a little more gentlemanly tomorrow than he was yesterday, and profit by it.

Fighting Blood Shows In Heimwehr Chief

Austria's Prince Von Starhemberg Reincarnates Doughty Ancestor.

Vienna, reflecting on the damage caused by the recent civil war against the socialists, recalls that Prince Ernst Rüdiger von Starhemberg, youthful heimwehr leader, is a namesake of an ancestor who in 1683 defended the city against the Turks. The doughty old count is

By WADE WERNER
Vienna (AP)—Two hundred and fifty-one years after his ancestor, the fighting Count Ernst Rüdiger von Starhemberg, stubbornly defended Vienna against the Turks, dashing young Prince E. R. von Starhemberg played a leading role in driving the socialists out of Vienna.

To young Prince Starhemberg—he is barely 35—the Turkish menace of 1683 and what he considers "the socialistic menace" of post-war Vienna were in most vital respects similar problems, the chief difference being that the Turkish siege lasted only 60 days, while the socialists held Vienna for more than 15 years.

From Starhemberg's point of view socialist rule was in most respects just as undesirable as Turkish rule; therefore a patriot's duty was to "throw them out," no matter how

what he said.
Prince Starhemberg never looked as determined as he talked. True, he was implicated in the abortive heimwehr putsch of 1931, but he was younger then. And the putsch itself was laughed off later as a force in Austria, and whatever agreements were reached here probably will take Starhemberg into account. Other rumors hard to kill are friendly, shy personality—just the type of young aristocrat who appeals to the workingman's apartment as a democrat. Yet he seldom uses the word "democratic" except in combination with "corruption."

Starhemberg was born in 1899 in Eferding, Upper Austria. He studied at the Universities of Innsbruck and Munich; fought as a youngster in the post-war clashes in Upper Austria; was for some years close to the Hitler movement.

In recent Austrian history he has figured as a bitter opponent of Hitler; but because of his earlier attitude and because of the general trend of the heimwehr movement, rumors kept cropping up that Star-

Rattlesnake Gets Larger by Discarding Old Skin

Rattlesnakes increase in size by shedding their old skin when it becomes too tight. Each time the snake discards its old coat a new ring is added to its body, which is at the end of its long body, but as the older joints fall off when they become worn with traveling and use, the number of rattles or joints does not indicate the creature's age, says Tit-Bits Magazine.

The rattle is composed of a series of about a dozen rings, or cups, one fitting inside the other, and at the base of each is a button-like joint.

When making the noise whence the snake derives its name, one cup is knocked against the next, and as many work together a continuous rattle is maintained.

Some have thought that the rattle attracted prey, but we find that practically all other creatures fear the sound. One naturalist stated that the rattle given out in a subdued tone was used to attract birds that feed on insects, owing to the sound then resembling that made by large grasshoppers. Another thought that it had the effect of paralyzing the prey. When the reptile is alarmed or cornered, the noise is given out with the greatest power.

The fang of the rattlesnake, like that of most poisonous reptiles, is a perfect hypodermic syringe. When not in use, it can be tucked out of sight and is protected by a fleshy covering. On the upper jaw we find the two main fangs, and through each there runs a fine tube connected to the duct that leads to the glands which contain the poison. Just beyond these, two more fangs are seen, but not so well developed, and still farther back are several minor ones.

Stone God Marks Site of Indian Church in Mexico
A perverse stone god that hides when men tamper with him is the feature of an ancient Indian city on Yucatan's Santa Marta mountains, a site six miles east of Ometepe, Mexico, not heretofore brought to the attention of archeologists, says Science Service.

The Indians of the vicinity paid little attention to the big carved god standing buried to his waist in the central plaza of the buried city, until archeological treasure was found in Monte Albán, Oaxaca. There, in hope of finding money under the stone figure, the Indians dug ropes to it and tried to haul it away.

The Mol backed and kicked and burst the ropes, but could not be moved. The Indians dug down to a floor of stone slabs. The ground seemed to soften and the Mol sank almost out of sight. The Indians concluded thereupon that the Mol did not wish to leave the spot.

The eyes of the figure are almond and Mongolian, the nose triangular and the mouth has a divided tongue hanging out. A square headpiece sits on the brow. It recalls somewhat the human carvings of the Mexican Indian ruins of Ometepe. Amongst the ruins of Ometepe, the region of Yucatan.

Million Men Cross Bridge

Abydos, an ancient city of Asia Minor, was the scene of the greatest military display of early history. It was there that Xerxes crossed the Hellespont in 480 B. C. Throwing a bridge of boats a mile long across the intervening water, Xerxes was prepared to march his army over when waves dashed his bridge apart, during a heavy storm. Angered, the mighty leader had the waves subjected to 300 lashes, after which chains were cast into the waves. Then a second and stronger bridge was erected and wine was poured on the water in a peace offering. When all was ready, the army started on the march. For a week, soldiers from 46 nations, all attired in their own national costume or uniform, passed in ceaseless line across the bridge as Xerxes sat on a throne and watched. It is estimated that his army numbered a million warriors.

Sharks Eat One Another
Watchfulness, the law of the sea, applies to sharks as well as other fish. Their span of years—never yet counted by scientists—is dependent upon their own alertness, for, although only a shark can bite a shark, these monstrous fish are cannibals, and eat one another as well as everything else in the sea.

Boys and Girls Set New Record

Phila. N. Y., March 26.—The old 1932 tree planting record will be a thing of the past this spring when boys and girls of school age set out more than a million and a half trees at their home farms, according to J. E. Davis, who has charge of juvenile forestry work at the New York state college of agriculture.

Already, he says, the enrollment of boys and girls who will plant trees has reached 1,590 as compared with 1,277 in 1932, the highest former enrollment. Each tree planter will receive 1,000 trees from the state conservation department.

These boys and girls come from two groups of young farm people, the 4-H clubs and the young farmers' clubs. From the 4-H clubs in 15 counties, 1,245 club members have ordered trees for spring planting. The young farmers have accounted for 345 orders from 61 high schools having departments of vocational agriculture.

"Trees granted for each order," Mr. Davis says, "will be planted on areas of idle land on each boy's and girl's home farm. Red pine and Norway spruce are the trees most in demand, though Scotch pine, white spruce, balsam, and white cedar have their supporters."

To make sure the work will be done properly, the extension forester at the state college of agriculture will spend three weeks in April conducting tree planting demonstrations on a schedule planned to cover the entire state. He will discuss the correct way to handle and care for trees and will show each tree planter the proper way to plant them.

College Women Can Land Jobs, And Here's How

By SIGRID ARNE

Washington, D. C. Restricted professional employment of women has not made it impossible for the thousands of college women to find a job if they really want one.

"Such women," says Mrs. Joseph Stinson, "are still forced into industries and the professions, although they take longer and the pay is lower."

Mrs. Stinson helped to establish a new agency in directing the installation of women's professional work. A privately endowed research group which has headquarters at Women's College of the University of North Carolina.

It is the only clearing house in the country for information on professional opportunities for women. Through Mrs. Stinson is able to determine how the depression has affected the trained woman worker.

Know What You Want. "First, a young woman seeking a job must know exactly what she wants," says Mrs. Stinson. "And it is quite as important that she have experience and a professional attitude."

Take a concrete example. Suppose a young woman wants to be an industrial engineer. She should read the trade journals in that field, find the firms employing women, determine the trends, and then if possible, work out something new she can do. She is much more likely to get a job than if she were merely waiting for employment.

For example, it would be difficult for a woman to land the many types of professional jobs that Mrs. Stinson wanted that would pay as well as the others. As a result, she made a survey of women's professional employment at the University of North Carolina.

She found that the women who were most successful in getting jobs were those who had a clear idea of what they wanted and who had the necessary experience and professional attitude.

Now the second edition is out, revised and brought up to date. In that time much has happened to one of the original writers, Frances Perkins writes.

Passover Festival Celebrations Here

The Jewish people begin to celebrate the eight-day festival of Passover. Appropriate prayers and songs will be chanted in the synagogue and at home. A religious and educational feast, known as the seder, the story of Passover will be narrated and symbolic acts connected with the festival will be performed.

Passover commemorates the Jewish exodus from Egypt, the liberation of the Jews from the Egyptian bondage. The Jews were enslaved and oppressed in Egypt. Under the leadership of the great emancipator, Moses, the Hebrew slaves left the land of oppression and persecution during the wondrous confusion of the night when the Egyptian army was brought upon the Egyptians. This historic event marked the birth of the Jewish nation. Israel was then transformed from a persecuted group of slaves into a free, free and independent nation.

In view of the lamentable, servile condition of the Jewish people in Germany, Poland, the festival of freedom will this year be celebrated with accentuated importance and with deep significance. With intense fervor the Jew will pray for the triumph of freedom and justice over tyranny, bigotry and wickedness.

He will celebrate the seder, the prayer in the synagogue, and the seder at home. The seder is a religious and educational feast, known as the seder, the story of Passover will be narrated and symbolic acts connected with the festival will be performed.

BUT SHE DIDN'T

Two girls were strolling round the shop. Presently they stopped beside a large tray filled with samples of a popular brand of tooth paste.

"Tooth paste," exclaimed one. "Just what I was looking for." Holding up one of the samples, she exclaimed to the chemist's assistant, "How much are these, please?"

The assistant smiled pleasantly. "They are gratuitous, madam," he replied.

"Yes, I know that," the girl retorted, impatiently, "but how much are they?"—The Biltz Magazine.

MSS. PRODUCTION

"I found it all, that pesky kid has left marks all over my novel." "Well, you can't blame him for that, father. He was evidently tracking the villain."

Good for the Soul

Employer—Your demand note for $93 is 2d received. I absolutely refuse to pay this infamous tax. You are a robber, a rogue, and a scoundrel. You ought to be ashamed of yourself. You deserve a sound thrashing and if—Got all that down, Miss Trent? Typist (nervously)—Yes, Sir. Employer—Right! Just tear it up and burn it. It has done me good dictating it.

Little "Short"

Sixteen-year-old Bob had just come in from a bob-aid party which he had attended with his girl friend. "Did you have a good time?" asked his mother.

"I guess so," answered Bob, dubiously. "Only, I bet every lot that was vacant yesterday had a hot-dog stand today, and I only had a nickel."

A Long Haul

A celebrated English tenor, after his performance at a reception was being gushed over by an elderly duchess who exclaimed: "Your beautiful singing took me back to my girl hood days."

"Really?" murmured the artist. "I had no idea my voice would carry so far."

A Miracle

"Your methods of cultivation are hopelessly out of date," said the youthful agricultural college graduate to the old farmer. "Why, I'd be astonished if you got even ten pounds of apples from that tree."

"So would I," replied the farmer. "It's a pear tree."

RETOUCHED

"Why is Jones so gloomy looking?" "He and Alice have just come out of the dark room where he had evidently developed a negative."

Hard Part

Helen—Winnie has a very difficult role in the show the Dramatic society is giving.

Joan—Difficult? Why, she hasn't a word to say.

Helen—Well, what could be more difficult for her?—Pearson's Weekly.

Down and Out

The aviation instructor, having delivered a lecture on parachute work, concluded:

"And if it doesn't open—well, gentlemen, that's what is known as 'jumping to a conclusion.'"

A Pair of Friends

"I'm surprised at you refusing to lend me five shillings. One friend should always be willing to help another."

"I know, but you always insist on being the other."

Unfortunate Choice

Young Woman (helping at Jumble sale)—I have sold everything out of that room.

Victor's Wife—Oh, dear, dear! That was the cloak room!

Howe About: Program Complete For Easter Ball

Writers Power of the Minority Avoid Worry

By ED HOWE

ONE of the best of the modern writers confesses he hates fiction; that the novel is a dying form; that the world is tiring of everything artificial, and turning to things sober and true; that there are so many books that producing and writing them has become a "racket." This is further than I care to go, although I care as little for fiction as anyone.

I frequently charge that many noted writers are not understandable because of overwrought figures of speech and poetical fancies not properly belonging in any sound mind or print. It is not a new complaint. "So Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett have gone off together," said Sidney Smith, when their marriage was announced: "I hope they understand each other; no one else does."

An idle young fellow (who plainly gives too much of his time to sport) lately called on the editors of the small town in which he lives, and induced them to print a communication declaring that another football stadium is needed, although the town already has at least two football fields good enough (one of them lighted for night games).

I was displeased with the editors for printing so foolish a suggestion during unexampled hard times, and told my women folks (in the usual vigorous fashion common to submerged men) that there was no prospect whatever of the proposal being considered.

The young fellow convinced me again I am often mistaken. Within a few days he had all the clubs in town considering his suggestion with considerable favor. The papers printed a long list of prominent citizens who had promised to "look into it," and who seemed favorably disposed. At this writing there is a fair prospect that this young fellow will win another victory over thousands of fairly sensible citizens who are being outraged and ruined by unnecessary waste, but who are afraid to assert themselves even in the presence of boys (to say nothing of their fear of old soldiers, statesmen, women, preachers, educators and foolish soliciting committees).

I have observed that when I worry, it hurts me as much as eating too much unsuitable food. . . . Organize a Don't Worry club of your own, as I have done, and see how stiff you can keep your upper lip in avoiding cause for worry; men usually worry because they have neglected something they should have attended to.

In my eightieth year I have an ambition to candidly write a summary of what I finally think of all I have encountered in my long journey, the writing to be brief, easily understood, respectable and honest. But writing has so long been exaggerated, unfair, long drawn out, complicated, irrelevant, partisan, that in attempting the task, I find I have absorbed so much of the bad style, I am discouraged.

The excuse and intention of writing in the first place must have been to make honest records of transactions yesterday for use today and tomorrow.

If a merchant or his clerk makes note of shipment of peaches to a customer, why should he encumber his writing with mention of blushes, or down, or color, in the peaches? The customer will remark this, if he cares to, when the shipment arrives. Or if the merchant wishes to indicate on his bill that the peaches were shipped last night, there is no necessity to mention the moonlight, if there was any; the customer will not be interested. In the growth of literature writing men have developed so many bad habits, and I have learned so many of them, I am unable to express myself as fittingly as I wish to.

We human creatures are said to be the best specimens of living things. The greatest of our tiny ambitions should be to make the most creditable history possible for future professors to write about. Will readers who consider us a thousand or a million years in the future say we did reasonably well, or will they say we played the game badly? In the distant future a man may find your skull, and carry it to colleges, museums and laboratories for examination. What will the professors say thousands of years in the future of the 1934 man? Will they speak as well of us as our professors now speak of the old Greeks?

Every day I think: "I'll do better tomorrow." And usually tomorrow I repeat what I did yesterday. . . . Occasionally I do a little better because of my resolves; what little improvement I have made has been because of them.

Men have been thinking about life a good many years without anyone discovering much that is new. It is admitted we have copies of books written thousands of years ago, and these early authors were as good as any of the men writing now; some say they were better. So if you have a remedy, as a result of your thinking, bore your neighbors as little as possible with it; the chances are a million to one it doesn't amount to anything. Either your plan can't be put into effect (the usual trouble with plans) or it has been tried and failed.

Three U. S. Captives The United States has had three Captives. Congress moved from New York to Philadelphia December 4, 1790; stayed there until May 14, 1800. The Capitol at Washington was first used by congress when it reconvened in October, 1800.

Atlantic, Pacific Sea Levels Some years ago the tide gages at the two ends of the Panama canal were connected by a line of precise leveling. Computations from a record of tide for ten years indicated that the average mean sea level at the Pacific entrance was approximately seven inches higher than at the Atlantic entrance. Determinations of the mean sea level along the coasts of the United States indicate that the difference averages about two feet at equal latitudes.

Tells Way to Save on Food

March 29, March 30.—A family of five can save as much as $20 a month by changing from a prepared ready-to-eat cereal to a home-cooked cereal.

According to Marion Plan of the New York state college of home economics.

Substituting a home-cooked for a prepared food is only one way to save on the food bill, Miss Plan says. Another is to use foods of similar value which are less expensive.

For example, orange juice may cost 10 cents a quart, but a cup of orange juice from a home-grown, home-made tomato. By using the tomato juice the homemaker who has a family of five members can save $20 to $30 in one winter.

Choosing less expensive varieties is another way to save. In the selection of meat, for instance, the buyer has a wide range of possible grades, Miss Plan points out. "The federal government aids meat buyers by inspection of all meat slaughtered at a packing house and by grading meat, if the packer desires, as prime, choice, good, medium, common, cutter, and low cutter.

Prime and choice are usually sought by clubs and large hotels. In the retail market, good and medium grades of meat do not cost more than common or lower grades. Many homemakers, faced with economy problems, find they can serve more attractive and varied meals with cheaper cuts of meat grade meat than more expensive cuts of cheaper grades."

Left-over biscuits, rolls or corn bread may be cut into strips and baked until well browned and then served with soups or salads.

Fat Can Be Used Again

Fat in which doughnuts or similar foods have been fried can be saved by stretching cloth across the top of a jar and pouring the warm melted fat through it.

BANISH COMMON
CONSTIPATION WITH DELICIOUS CEREAL

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Look out for headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sallow complexion, sleeplessness. Frequently, these are warning signs of common constipation. If neglected, your health may be impaired.

"Today, you can rid yourself of common constipation by eating a tempting cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes. How much better this is than taking patent medicines!

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will usually overcome most types of common constipation. Chronic cases, with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

A Synthetic Season

New York—Because we have been writing about alpaca and mohair you must not think that these fabrics are as old-fashioned as they sound. They have managed to look very up-to-date which is because they are so interestingly woven and interwoven with other yarns. Better get over the idea, right now that you are going to be able to tell at a glance what a fabric really is.

It is a confusing world and now the least confusing thing is to know the modern fabric. It is seldom what it seems. Synthetic? What of it? We have survived more deadly synthetic stuffs than are made into costumes.

And it's the same with feathers. Don't ring up the Audubon Society and wax indignant because you find women wearing feather-trimmed hats again. You'd be surprised what can be done with barn yard feathers. And women are wearing quite a few feathers. A pheasant turban, I would have you know, was worn by a chic Parisienne at the races not long since. Butterflies, too, have fluttered into the style picture.

Among the old things brought back to fashion one must include Valenciennes lace which is used, not so much for lingerie, once its stamping ground, but for neckwear and all manner of interesting dress details. Although efforts have been put forth, from time to time, to oust the heavy and dark Alencon laces from the lower level clothes, they have met with naught. Women seem to love Alencon trimmed lingerie and some of our best dressed brides have their hope chests filled with it.

When it Comes to Edges

Many printed dinner frocks and evening ensembles repeat two or more of the lively colors in the print in long sashes, usually in crepe and occasionally in velvet.

The laces seen in advance spring collections are thin and fine, often with large spreading feathery designs.

Scalloped edges are approved as trimmings by Paris houses who introduce them at hemlines of jackets, skirts and coats, and repeat them at sleeves and necklines.

ALPACA FOR SKIRT, JACKET AND BRET

Copyright, 1934, by Fairchild

Smart novelty alpaca makes this skirt and jacket from Marcel Rochas with a "coolie" beret of the same fabric from Maria Guy. The fabric is all blank, but with a relief like little ribbons running through it. Note the big sleeves, just covered the elbow, the shorter cut to the jacket front and the nacre shell buttons.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

While navy and black are the leaders in collections, brown is, by no means out of the running, and appears in chiffons for afternoon, prints for daytime and evening, and in high style crepe gowns for dinner.

Esopus Resident
Inherits $10,000

New York, March 29 (Special)—Mary Hall Oxholm, whose address is given as in care of Charles Mercer Hall of Esopus, receives two bequests of $5,000 each from the estate of the late Mrs. Clara Higgins Smith, sister of the late Frank W. Higgins who was governor of New York in 1905-06, according to the terms of the will offered for probate here today.

Mrs. Smith, who died here March 15, left an estate formally described today as being "more than $10,000," but which is believed to exceed several millions. The chief beneficiary is the American Red Cross at Washington left a contingent interest in $190,000, various stock holdings and the residuary estate. Several individuals and institutions receive outright bequests or trust funds ranging from $1,000 to $100,000. The Bank of New York and Trust Co. is the executor.

LOBSTER FILLING MAKES
TASTY COCKTAIL WAFERS

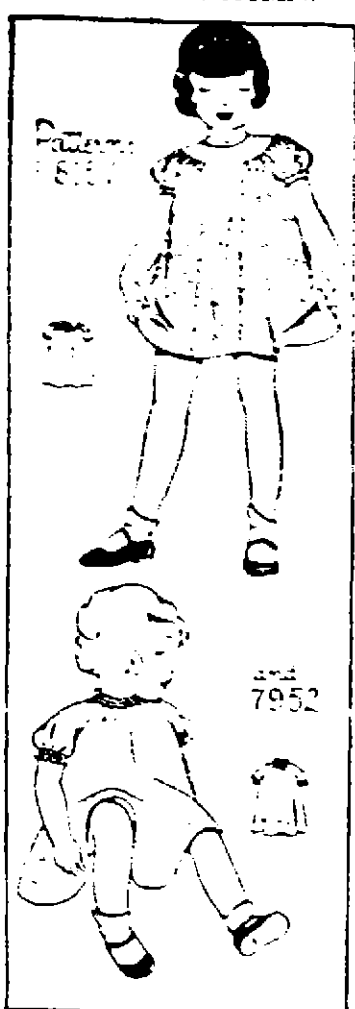

Attractive and tasty appetizers to serve with cocktails can be prepared by spreading thin slices of white bread with lobster, minced and combined with chopped celery, pickle and salad dressing.

After slicing the bread and spreading the mixture roll up each piece like a tiny jelly roll, wrap in waxed paper and place in the ice box until serving time. Then cut off slices one-third of an inch thick. They may be eaten easily from the hands.

WASH TOMATOES BEFORE
SCALDING AND PEELING

With spring here, tomatoes soon will become important items of the diet. First they should be washed, then covered with boiling water so the skins may be removed easily. Next dip them in cold water. If a tomato cup is to be made, the tomatoes should be neither scalded nor peeled. After being washed, they should be cut from the stem end and the pulp removed.

Ebony

Ebony is the heartwood of several different tropical African and Asiatic trees. The best ebony is a deep black, although other varieties vary in color through several shades of brown. The term, ebony, is also applied to the wood of trees other than true ebony. Including the green ebony of the West Indies and the bastard ebony of Brazil.

A DISH FOR TODAY

French Omelet

One way to make food restful is to serve up ordinary dishes through a new twist. Here's a recipe for a French omelet.

Washing makes a difference in the quality of the omelet. Wash the eggs well.

Beat the eggs well with cream.

Season with salt and pepper.

Drop the omelet into a hot, buttered pan.

Turn it over when the top is cooked.

Slide it onto a plate and serve with tart.

French omelet served with whole wheat bread and butter, a spring salad of lettuce, radishes and onions, and a glass of preserved fruit.

For a more elaborate and plenty of food for the children make a light lunch of omelet, bread, according to the New York state college of home economics at Cornell University.

Service Today at Redeemer Lutheran

Today will mark the last of a series of services which will be held at the Redeemer Lutheran Church in the afternoon. The service will be held at 7:30 p. m. and will be a special service for the children of the church. The service will be held in the church and will be a special service for the children of the church. The service will be held in the church and will be a special service for the children of the church.

ply and recently the women which mark the last few days of the season's life on earth, and some of the reflections suggested thereby. The reflection of the multitude with banners and palms, the view of Jerusalem from the steep of Olivet, the scene in the temple and the lower walk over the mount at night, form the chief features of the first part.

Part II opens with the Supper of the Passover, at which Jesus was with his disciples, and gives to his friends the new commandment of love for one another as the sign of true discipleship. From this the scene passes to the infinite pathos of the Garden of Gethsemane, the sudden appearance of the hostile crowd, Jesus forsaken by his disciples, His utter loneliness among ruthless foes, the tumult before Pilate in the judgment hall, the passion of the cross, the tragedy and triumph of Calvary.

The service will be a candle-light service beginning at eight o'clock. The church doors will be open at 7:15.

Tongore Cemetery Meeting

The annual meeting of the lot owners of the Tongore Cemetery Association will be held at the I. O. O. F. Hall, Olive Bridge, Monday, April 2, at 8 o'clock in the evening. Officers and directors will be elected for the ensuing year. Other important business will be transacted.

Two Mail Trains To Be Discontinued On West Shore Monday

Early Afternoon Upbound Mail and Mid-Afternoon Downbound Mail will not be in service after Saturday.

Beginning Monday, April 2, the Railway Post Office service on West Shore trains 7 and 12 will be discontinued. Train 7 is the northbound train which arrives at Kingston at 1:45 p. m. and leaves at 1:55 p. m. Train 12 is the southbound train which arrives at Kingston at 3:57 p. m. and leaves at 4:07 p. m.

Incoming mails that have been carried on trains 7 and 12 never have been distributed by letter carriers in this city until the following morning because they arrived too late for the afternoon carrier delivery. The outgoing mails that have been carried on trains 7 and 12 will be distributed on the next succeeding north and south-bound trains. North-bound mails will be dispatched on train 13, and will close at the main post office at 6:25 p. m. South-bound mails will be dispatched on train 14, and will close at the main post office at 7:10 p. m. Inasmuch as uptown station and Rondout station close at 6 p. m., mails for trains 13 and 14 will close at the stations at 5:15 p. m.

On account of the discontinuance of train 7 and in order to conform to changed schedules elsewhere, the Star Route messenger who carries mail to Margaretville and intermediate and connecting points will leave the main post office earlier in the afternoon. Mails for those points will close at the main post office at 1:25 p. m.

State Surplus Seen Of 2 Million Dollars

Comptroller Makes Prediction of Appropriate Amount by End of Fiscal Year, June 30, 1937—Net Debt is $344,097,231.84.

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—State Comptroller Morris S. Tremain today predicted that New York will have a surplus of approximately $2,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year on June 30, 1937.

He estimated that the state's assets on that date would be $434,784,533.26 as against liabilities of $432,782,533.12, leaving out the entire budgetary deficit.

The state's cash position of last March 16 showed bank deposits, excluding sinking funds and unexpended bond money, of $36,727,365.94, Comptroller Tremain said.

"This is fully secured by legal collateral, including ample collateral covering $320,477.73 then lodged in closed banks."

The total net debt amounts to $344,097,231.84, he estimated, or less than two per cent of the assessed value on property subject to taxation for state purposes.

Of this amount, $154,654,437.09 is composed of budgetary notes which, under the constitution, must mature and be paid off in cash from current revenues one year from the date of issue.

Arrangements have been made, the comptroller announced, to redeem $120,000,000 of these notes before next June 30, leaving less than $35,000,000 to be paid off.

Meanwhile, with Comptroller Tremain saying that "the trend appears to be definitely upward," the state prepared to sell $50,000,000 in bonds on April 3.

A sum of $30,000,000 will be for unemployment relief, maturing in 1941; $8,000,000 for emergency construction, maturing in 1939; $4,000,000 for general state improvement, also maturing in 1939; and $8,000,000 for elimination of grade crossings, maturing in 1934.

Noted Architect Dies At Poughkeepsie Home

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—Plans were indefinite today for the funeral of William J. Beardsley, 62, architect who designed many public buildings in New York state.

He died last night at his home in this city, where he always lived, after an illness of one month. One project for which he gained prominence was in winning an award for plans to relocate Sing Sing prison in the Bear Mountain park reservation. Work was started, but never completed.

Among buildings he planned are: Court houses in Greene, Dutchess, Livingston, Rensselaer, Chautauque, Sullivan, Putnam, Seneca, Nassau and Franklin counties; tuberculosis hospitals in Oneida and Nassau counties; and a welfare home in Erie county.

Police were investigating to determine whether it was an accident or suicidal. He was pronounced dead on his arrival at a hospital in a police patrol. No Roadside Bear Cubs

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—The "bear cubs in a cage" attractions at roadside stands will be taboo in New York state this year. Pointing out that within the past few years several children have been killed by captive bears, Conservation Commissioner Litgow Osborne announced that no licenses will be issued for possession of the animal. He said that practice of keeping bears in a cage is considered too dangerous for public safety. It has been customary, he declared, for many persons each spring to hunt the bear, kill the mother and capture the cubs to use them for possible money making attractions.

To the East or To the West?

After new worlds to conquer, Maurice Rossi (left) and Paul Codos, holders of the non-stop distance record, plan a flight to Buenos Aires or Singapore from Iles, France, as soon as weather conditions permit, to better their own mark. Rossi and Codos took their plane, the Joseph Lebrun, from New York to Hayak, Syria, in August, 1933, a distance of 5,633 miles, in 57 hours.

Dr. Wirt, Once 'Lion' Going Out Like Lamb

Foulkes, Michigan Republican, Says Dr. Wirt Refused Debate—Telegram Made Public—Would Make No Assertion.

Washington, March 30 (AP).—Representative Foulkes (D-Mich.) disclosed today that Dr. William A. Wirt of Gary, Ind., had declined a challenge to debate with him upon the latter's allegations that some Roosevelt advisors are communistic sympathizers.

The Wirt telegram as made public by the congressman read: "Secretary Wallace recently published the statement 'There can hardly be even a satisfactory tentative answer until we decide which way we want to go. It should be debated in Congress, in public forums in city and in country school-house meetings in every state. The people must be let in on the problem.'"

"The question is not a manhunt for a Communist. I congratulate you on your offer to assist in this effort to decide the way we want to go. I sincerely regret that owing to the limitations of time and physical strength, I can not assist you."

After referring yesterday on the House floor to a telegram from Wirt in which he names a person, high in the administration who made certain significant statements, Foulkes declined until today to give the text of the telegram to newspapermen.

He said, however: "He (Dr. Wirt) quotes Secretary Wallace as well as some others to the effect that brain trusters had not decided yet which way the country was going."

Today, Foulkes declined to express himself on the "significance" of the message from Wirt.

The Michigan congressman's statement added, however: "Apparently Dr. Wirt came in like a lion and is going out like a lamb."

License Blanks Go Out To Liquor Trade Today

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—The task of mailing out license blanks to the 12,000 establishments in the state engaged in manufacturing or selling liquor began today under the authority of the Kleinfeld bill which extended the life of the alcoholic beverage control board to October 1.

Governor Lehman signed the bill last night with two other liquor measures, one continuing for another year the state tax on beer, wine and liquor, and the other providing a new scale of license fees to be effective until a permanent control plan is adopted.

The old licenses expire April 1. After signing the bill reducing the license fees, Governor Lehman sent a memorandum to the legislature warning that the new rates would cut estimated revenue from this source approximately $2,000,000.

He asked that this reduction be taken into consideration in making appropriations additional to those already in the executive budget.

Children Gain in Fall. Healthy children gain weight more slowly during April, May and June than at any other time, and gain it fastest in the fall and early winter, according to a Research Laboratory official. On the other hand, increases in weight come fastest in the months when increase in weight is slow.

Card of Thanks. We wish to extend our sincere thanks to all our relatives and friends, especially the Rev. A. S. Cole, Dr. H. L. Rakov and the Conner Funeral Home for their many kind-hearted services during the illness and at the time of the death of our beloved husband, father and brother, Mr. Lewis Hulsar, Sr., and for the beautiful floral tributes received.

SHOKAN

Shokan, March 30.—Mrs. Albert Carman of Renaissance spent the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bedell.

Mrs. Bert Winchell on Tuesday entertained Mrs. Lawrence Quick and Mrs. Sylvester Wells of Shokan, also Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Wager of Accord, at the Winchell home in the west end of the village.

Velma Personous, four-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gould Personous, attended the Shokan school this week for the first time.

Following a recent severe attack of a condition that has kept the local physician ill since the first of the year, Dr. Joseph J. Cosgrove yesterday underwent a serious abdominal operation at St. Peter's Hospital, Albany.

The doctor is under the professional care of Drs. James N. and Edgar Vanderveer and J. A. Rooney, all of whom are life-long friends of the Cosgrove family.

Dr. Cosgrove has many friends who hope for his speedy recovery.

A jolly crowd of young people from Ashokan and vicinity enjoyed a party one night recently at the Tonche Mountain camp of Senator Charles W. Walton.

There were about 50 persons present at this pleasing social affair which was arranged by members of the younger set. Senator Walton has converted the old barn on his mountain property, formerly the Vandebogart farm, into an attractive lodge, or picturesque retreat at which the senator with characteristic hospitality leaves the latch-string out for his host of friends in northern Olive and Hurley.

Mrs. Garbriel Richard is expected soon to return to Shokan from Flushing, L. I., after an absence of several months.

John Haggerty, of the bacteriological laboratory down at the reservoir makes daily trips in his car between his Kingston home and Brown's by way of Shokan.

It is reported that Frank and Arthur Myers will soon open up their refreshment stand and camp in the west end of the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Barringer of Samsonville were business callers in Shokan Monday.

An old fashioned pancake supper will be held in the Reformed Church hall next Wednesday evening, beginning at 5:30 o'clock.

Mrs. George VanderOsten entertained several of her friends at a dessert bridge Wednesday afternoon.

Grading work on the Ashokan county road job has been discontinued for the time being.

46 Civil Cases On April Calendar

WAWARSING ASSESSOR INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Howard Moshier, assessor of the town of Wawarsing, was severely injured when the truck he was driving was struck by a southbound O. & W. train, about a quarter of a mile north of Mountain Dale Tuesday afternoon.

The truck was carried several hundred feet up the track, but remained upright, which probably saved Mr. Moshier from being killed instantly. As it was he received head injuries that it took several stitches to close. In addition to possible concussion of the brain, he was taken to the Monticello Hospital. Mr. Moshier's home is in Dairyland.

King's Crown Dance. An old fashioned and modern dance will be held at the King's Crown on Washington avenue on Saturday night with music by Floyd Barringer.

Repairing Break. Workmen are busy today replacing a considerable length of water main on North Front street, in front of the Van Kleef garage, following a break in the main during the night.

Society Notes

Quick-Bullish. New York, N. Y., March 28.—Miss Mary Wirt, daughter of Howard Wirt and the late Carrie Wirt, was married today to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Quick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Quick, who were formerly married at the parish of the Assault Reformed Church on Friday March 16, at 7 o'clock, by Dr. L. G. Lezzett. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. LeVerne Brown. The bride wore a blue dress with hat and shoes to match and carried a bouquet of calla lilies. The maid of honor wore a gold dress and carried roses and sweet peas. A short honeymoon was spent on Long Island and Mt. Vernon. Their many friends wish them a long and happy married life.

Birthday Party. A very delightful time was had by all who attended the surprise party given to Peter Hoffman of Tillson, March 28, in honor of his eighteenth birthday. Harold Macholdt entertained with a few popular selections on the piano. Roy Van Keuren and Wilbur Upton played guitar and Mr. Hoffman the banjo for dancing. Games and dancing were enjoyed. Judge Loughran Sets a Record. Judge John T. Loughran, who has been holding a trial term in Sullivan county, has apparently established an all time record for number of cases disposed of at one term in the country. A recess has been taken over the Easter holiday season, but Judge Loughran will return for a few days beginning April 13, and hear additional cases before adjourning the term in Sullivan county in order to open a term in Albany.

The Middletown Times-Herald carries the following report of the March trial term of supreme court in Sullivan county over which Judge Loughran presided:

Monticello Justice John T. Loughran is believed to have established a record in Sullivan county at this term of supreme court which began March 27, by disposing of more than 100 civil suits, besides other court activities, including naturalization court, more than fifteen motions, and grand jury matters. There were 495 cases on the court calendar on the opening day of court.

Twenty cases were tried by jury; thirty-four were settled otherwise or disposed of before trial; twelve equity cases were heard; eleven cases were ordered stricken from the calendar and one dismissed.

When court recessed Thursday, 110 cases had been disposed of, over one-quarter of the cases appearing on the original calendar.

Judge Loughran Will Preside at Albany. Supreme Court Judge John T. Loughran, who has been holding a trial term in Sullivan county during March, will go to Albany where on Monday he will open the April term of Supreme court. Judge Loughran will however return to Sullivan county on April 16 where a trial is scheduled. After a few days at Sullivan county he will probably return to Albany to resume that term.

Catch Large Beaver. It is reported that among beavers brought in to Game Protector George N. Remick, at Monticello for tagging, at the beginning of the open season for beaver, was one that weighed 90 pounds. It is said to be one of the largest ever seen in that section, and was taken by George Cook of Pultenburgh. Another beaver, taken by Bernhard Mattheus, employed on the Bradford game preserve near Monticello, weighed 70 pounds.

Collection Period Extended. County Treasurer Arthur Rice received notice Thursday that the governor had signed the bill extending the period for collection of town taxes from April 1 to June 1.

Maryland Stamps On Sale at P. O.

The Maryland Tercentenary Commemorative postage stamps issued by the Post Office Department in commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary of the settlement of Maryland have been placed on sale at the main post office (Upper Station and Railroad Station) and are being placed in stamp collectors and others who are interested in the various special issues of postage stamps.

The stamp is of the same size and shape as the regular issue, 6.15 inch by 3.15 inch in dimension, arranged horizontally. It is enclosed in a narrow double-line border. Within a narrow pane, across the top of the stamp is the word "Maryland" and "Tercentenary" in white roman, on a solid background. In the center of the panel are the dates "1634" at the top and "1934" at the bottom in white arabic. The panel is supported by ornamental brackets at each end. The stamp is printed in red ink.

The central design is a representation of the two sailing vessels on which the first Maryland colony came to America. On the curved ribbon at the left of the central design is the inscription "The Ark and the Dove" in dark old English lettering. In a corresponding position at the right is the Maryland coat of arms. Within circular panels with white borders and solid backgrounds in both lower corners is the large denomination number "3". Between the circles along the bottom of the stamp is a narrow panel with white edges and solid background and arranged in two lines is the word "U. S. Postage" and "Three Cents".

Splendid Grazing Lands. As early as 1537 the intrepid colonists who founded Annapolis plunged through the trackless Chaco in an unsuccessful attempt to reach Peru. By 1548 a party actually succeeded in reaching the Pacific and returning to Annapolis, taking two years for the round trip.

"Cattle raising is Paraguay's chief industry, meat products leading among its exports. The Chaco, with its high native stock grasses and ample water supply, is a promising cattle country. There is probably no stock raising region in the United States possessing such fine natural grazing lands, in spite of the Chaco's handicap of occasional floods. As the vast plains of Argentina are more and more given over to the cultivation of cereals, the cattle ranges are bound to creep north to the grasslands of Paraguay and eastern Bolivia.

"The Paraguayan cowboy is known as the charrero. Although usually smaller in stature than his cousin, the Argentine gaucho and the Chilean huaso, he is muscular and hardy, a typical rough rider. On a saddle trip we met a group of cowboys driving a band of cattle from the rodeo, where the herd is rounded up, to the river. I can still hear their ringing cattle call, 'Co-co-co! Co-co-co! Co-co-co!'

"About nine miles above Asuncion, on the Chaco side of the river, is a settlement of some commercial importance known as Villa Hayes (pronounced 'Veh-ayes' in Spanish). It was named after a President of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes, who, acting as arbitrator in determining the boundary between Argentina and Paraguay, rendered a decision highly favorable to the latter. Ironically, this town, named for an ardent prohibitionist, is surrounded by cane fields whose product is distilled into a very powerful rum.

"Modern explorers of the Chaco are the men engaged in the quebracho industry. It developed with the expansion of the Argentine railways, when quebracho logs were found to be just the thing for railway ties, and for fence posts on the extensive Argentine ranches. Quebracho (the word means 'ax-breaker') is a hardwood so durable that logs cut and left in the forest for 25 years have been found sound.

Extremes in Climate. "The Chaco is uniformly flat; its climate one of extremes. It is a land of heavy rainfalls and long-continued droughts. Animal life is abundant. The Chaco is the sportsman's paradise. A British enthusiast told me, 'From May to August is the best season—free from insect pests. We go duck shooting in flat-bottomed boats on a chain of smaller rivers and lagoons.'

"Besides duck, quail, and snipe, there is a native turkey of the mountains, with a black head, black head tufts, and a yellow black neck. Tapir, deer, carpincho, otter, and capybara abound in the marshy regions. Capybaras are exported from the lower Plata to the United States, the hair to be used in the manufacture of felt hats for men. In the woods are the jaguar, puma, anteater, armadillo, the maned wolf, and the pterocera, the latter always one of a troop.

"At parts we were offered malekine nearly 20 feet long, and suspected that they had been well stretched by the natives, since the price advanced with the length. Poisonous snakes, including rattlers, are a menace to the naked feet of the Indian. Snakebites, egret skin, hides, rubber, and specaculo formed the steamer's down-draw cargo."

City of Colon. The city of Colon, Panama, was first named Ancon-Colon, in honor of William B. Ancon, one of the first builders of the Panama railroad, and the Colon, a brother of Christopher Columbus. When the French started construction of the canal in 1891 the name Ancon was dropped.

Buxbury, Buxbury's "carpenter priest." The altar is red and white oak and is ornamented with novel ecclesiastical designs. No nails were used in its construction.

"MARATHON WAR" IS RESUMED IN CHACO

Hostilities Resumed by Bolivia and Paraguay.

Washington, — South America's "Marathon War" has been resumed. Following a Christmas truce and successful peace parleys, Paraguay and Bolivia reopened hostilities in the Chaco, a huge levelled covered in part with grass and in part by forests, and lying nearly in the heart of the continent.

"Chaco, corrupted from Chaca, means 'hunting ground' in Quechua, the language of the Incas of Peru," says Harriet Chalmers Adams in a communication to the National Geographic society. "Perhaps the ancient Peruvians hunted in this remote region beyond the Andes. Perhaps Incas tribes, fleeing from Spanish invaders, settled here, mingling their blood with that of the original inhabitants.

"One may see the Chaco from the wharves of Paraguay's capital, Asuncion. It begins on the opposite, or western shore, of the Paraguay river. A vast, low-lying, swampy region, given over for the most part to primitive nomadic tribes, the Chaco is being reclaimed as a cattle country. It is the larger but more sparsely settled portion of Paraguay. All but 50,000 of the 600,000 inhabitants of Paraguay live on the eastern, or Asuncion shore, where the land is slightly rolling, savannas mingling with forest, and tree-clad hills rise to perhaps 1,500 feet altitude.

Splendid Grazing Lands. As early as 1537 the intrepid colonists who founded Annapolis plunged through the trackless Chaco in an unsuccessful attempt to reach Peru. By 1548 a party actually succeeded in reaching the Pacific and returning to Annapolis, taking two years for the round trip.

"Cattle raising is Paraguay's chief industry, meat products leading among its exports. The Chaco, with its high native stock grasses and ample water supply, is a promising cattle country. There is probably no stock raising region in the United States possessing such fine natural grazing lands, in spite of the Chaco's handicap of occasional floods. As the vast plains of Argentina are more and more given over to the cultivation of cereals, the cattle ranges are bound to creep north to the grasslands of Paraguay and eastern Bolivia.

"The Paraguayan cowboy is known as the charrero. Although usually smaller in stature than his cousin, the Argentine gaucho and the Chilean huaso, he is muscular and hardy, a typical rough rider. On a saddle trip we met a group of cowboys driving a band of cattle from the rodeo, where the herd is rounded up, to the river. I can still hear their ringing cattle call, 'Co-co-co! Co-co-co! Co-co-co!'

"About nine miles above Asuncion, on the Chaco side of the river, is a settlement of some commercial importance known as Villa Hayes (pronounced 'Veh-ayes' in Spanish). It was named after a President of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes, who, acting as arbitrator in determining the boundary between Argentina and Paraguay, rendered a decision highly favorable to the latter. Ironically, this town, named for an ardent prohibitionist, is surrounded by cane fields whose product is distilled into a very powerful rum.

"Modern explorers of the Chaco are the men engaged in the quebracho industry. It developed with the expansion of the Argentine railways, when quebracho logs were found to be just the thing for railway ties, and for fence posts on the extensive Argentine ranches. Quebracho (the word means 'ax-breaker') is a hardwood so durable that logs cut and left in the forest for 25 years have been found sound.

Extremes in Climate. "The Chaco is uniformly flat; its climate one of extremes. It is a land of heavy rainfalls and long-continued droughts. Animal life is abundant. The Chaco is the sportsman's paradise. A British enthusiast told me, 'From May to August is the best season—free from insect pests. We go duck shooting in flat-bottomed boats on a chain of smaller rivers and lagoons.'

"Besides duck, quail, and snipe, there is a native turkey of the mountains, with a black head, black head tufts, and a yellow black neck. Tapir, deer, carpincho, otter, and capybara abound in the marshy regions. Capybaras are exported from the lower Plata to the United States, the hair to be used in the manufacture of felt hats for men. In the woods are the jaguar, puma, anteater, armadillo, the maned wolf, and the pterocera, the latter always one of a troop.

"At parts we were offered malekine nearly 20 feet long, and suspected that they had been well stretched by the natives, since the price advanced with the length. Poisonous snakes, including rattlers, are a menace to the naked feet of the Indian. Snakebites, egret skin, hides, rubber, and specaculo formed the steamer's down-draw cargo."

Bonus Bill Blockade In Senate Is Foreseen

Washington, March 30 (AP).—Senate administration leaders think privately that the $2,200,000,000 "greenback-bonus" bill has little chance of becoming law this session. The House has approved the measure, and it now is in the Senate finance committee. Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) indicated today there would be no rush by his committee even to consider the bill. Senator Harrison was one of those who stood with the President on the veterans' bill veto earlier this week.

Swartz, Erie county Republican.

"What! 98c
for Tooth-paste?"
(That's What You'd Pay,
Madam, If It Weren't for Advertising!)

NEARLY a dollar for a little tube of tooth-paste. $3.25 for a pair of chiffon hose. 50 cents for a gallon of gasoline. And a flat two thousand for a "popular priced" car.

How far could the old family budget stagger under that kind of load? What's more to the point, how many nice things could you afford to buy?

There's one big reason why you don't have to pay such outlandish prices for quality things these days. It's because you—and millions like you all over the country—do your buying through the advertising you read!

And it's because you—and thousands like you here in Kingston who read the Daily Freeman—can afford to be choosy and critical when you shop for values.

For Daily Freeman ads save you money! A merchant can mark this good merchandise at a lower price when his Daily Freeman ad will bring many, many dollar-wise shoppers to his store. Having all these buyers gives him a good return on just a tiny profit per item! And you pay no big "mark-up"

But price isn't everything. You get better quality in advertised goods. They have "acceptance"—they've been tested by thousands of shoppers as careful as yourself. And found worthwhile. They must be good or the merchant wouldn't spend his hard-earned money to advertise them in this newspaper where you can compare them with other offerings every day.

It will pay you many times over to read the ads in the Daily Freeman regularly.

How Advertising LOWERS
The Price of What You Buy!

Take Tooth-paste, for instance, Good tooth-paste. It may cost Mr. Manufacturer, Mr. Jobber and Mr. Druggist 30 cents a tube to make and sell it—counting salaries and packaging and transportation, rent and other "overhead" and the interest due on the note at the bank. A fair profit all along the line . . . and then this tooth-paste could be sold for 45c—if everybody knew about it!

Sure . . .

. . . but who does know about it? Just a mere handful of people who have heard of it by "word of mouth." A few hundred maybe. Not enough to pay the manufacturer's rent and his NRA salaries. NOT ENOUGH TO LET HIM STAY IN BUSINESS.

And so . . .

. . . he can do one of two things. Raise the price to nearly a dollar (as in our picture above) while you brush your teeth with plain water. Or raise the price a bare nickel per tube and spend that nickel per tube on advertising—to tell his story to millions—do a volume business at a small profit—and bring you good tooth-paste at 50c or even less.

Talks to parents

Following Sister

S. BROOKE PETERS CHURCH
Many a mother is puzzled by the behavior of her children. Her teachers and parents are puzzled by the behavior of her children. Her teachers and parents are puzzled by the behavior of her children.

Someone was always saying, "Molly, I'm surprised. Your mother would never have done that!" Molly began to hate the sound of the older girl's name, and was surprised to do the opposite of what was expected of her.

Of course a little more tact on the part of the teachers would have helped matters. But such tact is a moment of irritation the inevitable comparison was bound to come out.

It is hardly fair to ask a child to live up to the standards set by an older sister or brother. Relationship does not necessarily mean similarity. Molly's talents very possibly were quite unlike Sally's, and had she been rated on her own merits instead of by the artificial standard of her sister's accomplishments, she might well have struck out along a new road of her own and made a record too.

Often it is wiser to send children to different schools, even at the expense of extra trouble, to avoid the danger of hampering one with the other's reputation. If such a course is possible, certainly every precaution should be taken to avoid mixing the identities of the two children. The teachers should be warned beforehand that the same interests and talents must not be expected, but that each child must be allowed to develop in his or her own way.

Lawyers on Witness Stand

The Code of Ethics of the American Bar association says that when a lawyer is a witness for his client, except rarely as to formal matters such as the attestation or custody of an instrument and the like, he should leave the trial of the case to other counsel. Except when essential to the ends of justice, a lawyer avoids testifying in court in behalf of his client.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver and bowel poisons before breakfast!

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach. Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish tang which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphate hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

On The Radio Day By Day

By C. E. BETHFIELD
Time to Eastern Standard.

New York, March 29.—Voice by radio, as developed by Dr. Noel M. Reppas, New York scientist, is to be given its first test under actual broadcasting conditions Sunday night by Station WOR of Newark. Dr. Reppas' apparatus consists of sensitive meters and other apparatus used to check power line consumption when the invisible voters are asked to press buttons in keeping with broadcast instructions. However, for the Sunday night test, which will be made during a regular program at 8:45, the listeners in Essex county, New Jersey, and vicinity, in which 245,000 persons owning 37,000 radio sets, will be instructed merely to turn on an extra 10-watt electric light in their homes. Meters at the power plants will be checked to show the current drain increase, and from their readings it is hoped to obtain foundation data for further research.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

A PERMANENT WAVE IN ONE'S TEMPERAMENT

I KNOW it would be better if I were calm and collected and more stable and poised, and it would certainly be easier living with me," said a really lovable young person I know, "but I'm just not built that way. I am what I am—there's nothing I can do about it but let people hate me!"

If the same girl weighed 180 pounds and had a 40-inch waistline, would she say, "I'd like to be slim, but I'm just not built that way?"

I doubt it. I think she would hustle right out and get that eighteen day diet, or the nine-day diet, or whatever it is called, that takes the fat off the hips and reduces the waistline and changes a "44" into a "36." I think she would bravely forego starches and turn her back on sweets, though she had to clench her fists to eat lettuce when she craved ice cream, and summon all her will power to down lemon juice in place of "double malted."

If the same girl had a face that just went with curls and ringlets, but was gifted with wavy hair as straight as a poker, would she blithely say, "I'd look so much better if my hair had a wave, but what can I do when it just wasn't made that way?"

I doubt it. I think this girl would hit herself to the beauty shop for a permanent wave, even though it meant going without lunches or working overtime to be able to afford it. I think she would cheerfully give the time and any fortune that might be required for the operation and no less cheerfully continue to take the time and make the effort necessary to keep those curls looking their best.

No more fortitude than is required to discipline her figure would discipline her temperament, and the time and effort that turns straight hair into lovely curls would make the necessary improvement in a disposition that lacks "calm and poise." Would our young friend say that this is less important? Oh, no; she just never looked at it that way, that's all.

EGGS and CHICKENS

Modern Poultry Farm in America.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C. Poultry experts of the Department of Agriculture after careful experiments and studies have concluded that there is no truth in the old contention that the breeding of poultry strains for high egg production is impairing the quality of eggs.

For untold centuries the hen has been a companion of man in the onward march of civilization. In America, where poultry husbandry has attained its greatest development, the hen has become one of our leading national assets, growing in the past fifty years from a neglected side line on the average farm to a position where she is considered by the farmer as a very efficient contributor to his yearly income.

The hen might be termed a universal favorite, in that a greater number of persons are interested and actually concerned with poultry than with any other form of live stock. Last year there were more than 400,000,000 chickens in the United States.

The yearly value of the products of the American hen has at times passed the billion-dollar mark.

The great bulk of poultry and eggs produced in the United States comes from the Corn Belt states of the upper Mississippi valley. In fact, nearly one-half of our poultry population, or approximately 200,000,000 chickens, is found in what are known as the North Central states.

No Longer a Hobby. For many years a considerable proportion of our poultry population was kept in back lots of city and suburban communities by persons primarily engaged in some remunerative occupation. Poultry was raised largely for pleasure and as a hobby, and incidentally to insure a goodly supply of fresh eggs and meat for the family table.

Surveys made a few years ago in western urban and suburban areas showed an average of one bird to every two people. Such flocks, averaging from 10 to 25 fowls, were usually well cared for and consisted of birds of high quality.

The postwar period has witnessed the gradual disappearance of many of these back-lot poultrymen. This change in habits among a great mass of our population has fortunately been accompanied by the development of large commercial poultry farms and specialized hatcheries, which have found popular favor not only on the North American continent, but in many Old World countries.

Commercial poultry farms are especially successful near large centers of population, where the demand is for a strictly fresh, new-laid egg and fresh-killed poultry. Hundreds of such enterprises are being successfully operated in the Atlantic and Pacific coast states. The eastern sections produce especially for the New York trade, and the Pacific coast sections, after meeting the demands of the larger Pacific coast cities, ship their eggs to the Atlantic seaboard, where they find a ready market at attractive prices.

Industry is Systemized. Revolutionary changes have been going on in the poultry industry for ten years. Less and less attention is being given to the purely "fancy" and to the breeding of exhibition fowls, and more and more stress is being laid on their economic value in the production of human food.

The farm poultrymen are beginning to apply sound principles in the management of their flocks and are organizing co-operatively to move their graded eggs quickly to the large consuming centers.

The little White Leghorn hens of the Petaluma district, in central California, have become world famous because of the intensive conditions under which they are kept, hundreds of thousands being massed in one small valley; the entire community depends upon commercial egg farming for a livelihood.

It was not so many years ago that the American hen ruled supreme in the capacity of incubator and brooder, faithfully sitting out the 21 dreary days on the nest, cautiously leading her tender brood of fluffy youngsters through the early stages of their development.

The hen is too valuable today as an egg machine to allow her to waste weeks and months in hatching eggs and brooding chicks. Due to its greater efficiency, the modern incubator has gradually replaced the hen.

The rapid increase in poultry and the growing demand for baby chicks have called for the development of incubators of much greater capacity than formerly.

Credit for making possible our great commercial poultry industry should go in large measure to the modern mammoth incubator, equipped with automatic ventilation and temperature control, with labor-saving devices to eliminate hand turning and hand cooling, with eggs stacked deck upon deck or tier upon tier, efficiently heated with coal, kerosene or electricity.

Parallel with the development of the mammoth incubator, there has been evolved the colony brooder, heated by coal or kerosene, with a capacity of from 300 to 1,000 chicks under each store. One operator can effectively manage from 12 to 15 such brooding units and can successfully carry through the brooding period from 10-60 to 15,000 chicks.

The real romance of modern poultry husbandry has been the unprecedented growth in the production and shipment of ready-made baby chicks. Hatched in mammoth incubators on breeding farms or at commercial hatcheries, the chicks provide the most economical and convenient method of securing one's foundation stock, of enlarging one's flock, and of providing future generations of layers.

Shipping Baby Chicks. Formerly, hatching eggs were the medium whereby one poultryman purchased stock from another; but some 25 years ago, from the little village of Stockton, N. J., in the Delaware river valley, the first baby chicks were shipped.
